FAREWELL CONCERTSOMERSETS ENTERTAINED AT ST. PATRICK'S CLUB.*GALAXY OF TALENT.

An enjoyable farewell concert was given at St. Patrick's Club, Garden Road, on Saturday night, to the Somerset Light Infantry, which is leaving the Colony on November 26. There was a large gathering of members of the Club, ladies, and men of the Services.

During a break in the programme the Rev. Fr. Riganti, President of the Club, said a few words of farewell to the men of the S.L.I., who had been members of the Club, and to those others whom they had always been pleased to welcome to the Club as friends. They had had some happy times together.

Fr. Riganti added his thanks to Mrs. O'Hara, who is going away with the Regiment, for the help which she had rendered the Club at the various socials during her stay here. He said that they would not forget her and all who were going away, and wished them the help of God and all happiness in their new sphere of activity.

GARDEN FETE.BIG EFFORT BY ST. PETER'S CHURCH.

St. Peter's Garden Fete is being held next Saturday in the grounds of the old Sailors' Home at West Point. An even more attractive series of stalls and side-shows has been planned than in former years. Sweet Stall, Fruit and Flower Stall, Dollar Stall, Fancy Stall, Houpla, Coconut Shy, Weight Guessing, Gold Fish Stall, Miniature Golf, etc.

A very definite effort has been made in stocking the stalls to ensure that buyers shall get good value for their money and there will be a number of very attractive articles suitable for Christmas presents.

Tea, ices, and refreshments will be available throughout the afternoon.

The Fete is held to raise money for the funds of St. Peter's Church and a number of activities associated therewith. It will be opened at 3 o'clock by Mrs. H. T. Creasy. It is most easily reached by taking a Kennedy Town Bus to the corner of Western Street.

LESSON SERMON.FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, HONG KONG.

"Soul and body" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 23.

The Golden Text was: "The light of the body is the eye: if therefore thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light." (Matt. G. 22.)

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling: one God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all." (Eph. 4: 4, 6.)

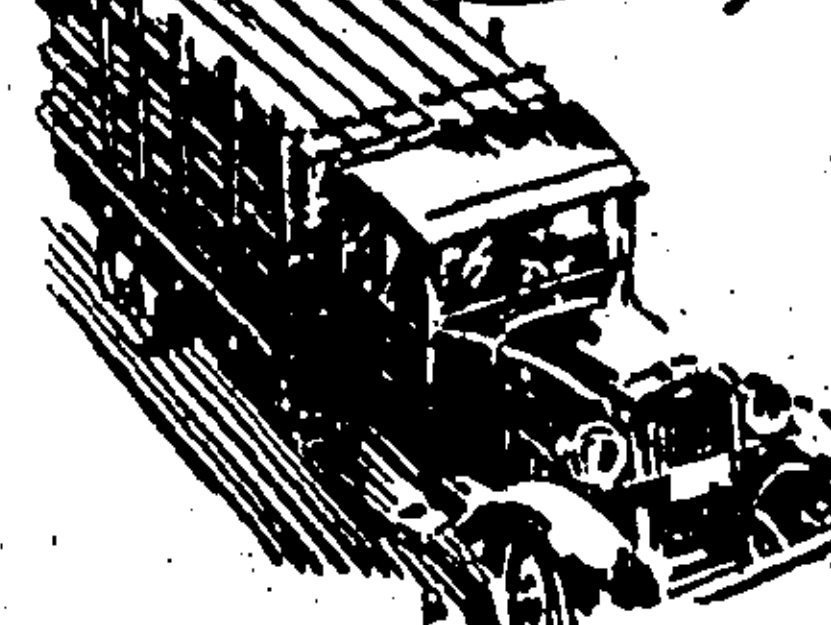

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the "Science of Mind" textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Identity is the reflection of Spirit, the reflection in multifarious forms of the living Principle, Love. Soul is the substance, Life, and intelligence of man, which is individualized, but not in matter. Soul can never reflect anything inferior to Spirit." (p. 477.)

LONE CARGO.

AT SEA IN A FREIGHTER.

A landlubber who on an ocean trip is an only passenger in a cargo boat cuts himself off completely from everything that belongs to life ashore, writes a correspondent in the Times; from bow to stern the freighter is a simple nautical unit, and not a compromise like a passenger boat, where the traveller gets only a superficial experience of the sea.

The writer left London in the summer for North America on board a vessel of 6,400 tons gross. She was only lightly loaded for the outward journey with about 1,500 tons of mixed freight, including cases of tea and a complete motor-car; but she was to pick up larger amounts for the homeward journey. Her single deck was of metal, red-painted and slightly rusty. It carried nothing but hatchways, winches, derricks, ventilators, and other marine tackle, and its bareness looked uncomfortable. The bulkheads loomed up like lonely white islands, and never a nook or shelter was visible. A huge pile of clinkers made the deck look still less attractive. The steward led me to my cabin, which proved to be, with the first mate's cabin on the other side of the ship, the foremost quarters on board. It was a roomy cabin, with two bunks and two ports, and was evidently used occasionally for some kind of official, such as a pilot confined to the ship by fog; in nine voyages out of ten, however, it was empty.

The s.s. had not had a passenger for years, and a sense of solitude soon descended upon me during the journey down Thames, with officers and crew busy, as at the beginning of every voyage. Not wanting to worry the steward too early, I found that I must sit on the hatchways or the bollards if I wanted to sit at all, but for the most part I wandered from one end of the deck to the other, being free of all parts of the boat, except the bridge. Soon after nightfall we were doing our full 11 knots in the Channel, under a clear sky and with a light breeze ahead. I was to take my meals with the officers, and the first meals at which we were a full table (apart from the officer on watch) was at 5.30 p.m. on the day of departure. There were three meals daily—breakfast at 8.30, lunch at 12.30, and high tea at 5.30, but at 4 p.m. and 8.30, also, there were cups of tea and such small eatables as one wished.

The early restraints soon passing, I came to look forward to these mealtimes as one of the greatest pleasures of the voyage. I had a place of honour on the right of the Captain, or Master. On my right was the wireless operator, and opposite, in order of seniority, the three officers—First Mate, Second Mate, and Third Mate. All were much travelled—even the younger junior officers—and their talk skipped lightly about the globe. I began to learn a great deal about the more intimate characteristics of the Continental ports and about many other places in the world, and absorbed much picturesque information on such varied subjects as the beauties of Manley Beach at Sydney; the banks of the Yangtze as far up as Hankow; the island of Curacao, with its great oil refinery; Honolulu, with its impression of Japan; and the eastern seaboard of the United States, with its many surprises, particularly those activities which are designated as "the Trade." I also took part (chiefly as a listener) in talks on the weather reports, ice reports, bearings, direction and progress.

As we left the last spot of England behind—the Bishop's Rock—I wondered what diversion I should find in the 2,800 miles of ocean ahead. I scarcely realized then with what interest I should later be regarding the changing colours of the sky, the cloud formations, the shades of the sea, the sizes and shapes of wave and swell. Nor did I realize how important the news bulletin from Rugby would become in the daily routine, nor the keen interest—almost excitement—which the near passing of an unassuming oil tanker would arouse, or the smoke of a big liner—perhaps the tips of her funnels—on the horizon. These things, I found, go to fill in the lonely hours of the limitless ocean. The day-time I would spend on deck or in my cabin, according to the weather. I would idle or read; besides my own books I had some from the excellent little library provided by the British Sailors' Society. At odd times I would talk with members of the crew, from whom I learned much of the A B C of ship's equipment. I also learnt that if one of the quartermasters has a grudge against the cook he may settle the matter by putting the ship into a heavy roll during the night in an endeavour to precipitate the cook out of his bunk. One of these grudges, according to private information which I received, arose during the voyage—it was a disclosure of which I had no reason to doubt the truth.

Other hours were an hour of bridge each evening with two of the officers and the chief steward, and still longer periods spent in the wireless room, where the operator brought in both English and American stations with remarkable clarity. In the stern a squeaky gramophone could be heard occasionally, representing an attempt by the crew at self-entertainment, but their chief diversion, I concluded, was work. Polishing, painting, repairing, and similar jobs were done with quiet industry, and without the pauses sometimes to be noticed on land. Several visits I paid to the bridge (by permission) and the engine room, and there were few parts of the ship with which I was not well acquainted before we berthed.

The run of the weather was contrary to long-proved precedent for the time of year. The sea was roughest, in a moderate gale, during the first three days in the Atlantic, and calmest and clearest as, in the last few days, we approached the American coast south of Newfoundland Banks. Here we had cloudless skies, a waveless ocean, and light breezes tempering the warmth of the sun. We glided into Boston Bay on a calm, starlit evening, and shipped our pilot from a sailing boat—a survival which distinguishes Boston from most other ports.

So ended my 14 days on the Atlantic freighter. It was an experience to be remembered with the keenest pleasure, though sometimes I yearned for another idler to keep me company in the more monotonous periods. I was guilty once of seeking ahead not without hope, for signs of icebergs; while I gained a fleeting thrill one evening from far-distant lightning, which for a moment I imagined might be rockets. I missed a tennis ball and racket, with which I might have devised some solo exercise against the bulkheads more dignified than that provided by the shipping rope. I also, unreasonably, missed the joys of a swim in the sea so vastly present, but I gained some compensation in hot sea-water baths.

BUILDER'S WARNING

MAKESHIFT PLANS TO DEAL WITH UNEMPLOYED.

Sir James Lithgow, President of National Shipbuilders Security, Ltd., in his presidential address to the Institution of Engineers and Shipbuilders in Scotland, drew attention to problems of trade depression and unemployment.

"Events of the past year," he said, "have strongly emphasised that there is something far wrong with British trade, since we are failing to give employment to a substantial section of our working population, who are thus becoming a national liability rather than an asset."

"This country depends for its very existence on its export trade.
It is manifestly unfair, and in the long run impracticable, that our ancillary—I might almost call them parasitical—services, whether under the control of public authorities or private bodies, should endeavour to provide themselves with a higher standard of remuneration and comfort than can be obtained by those of you who are actually doing the world's work in providing goods required in all parts of the globe for the development of civilisation."

"The sheltered trades, in achieving a position of superiority, have failed to appreciate their debt to the rest of the community and their dependence upon it. We can be pardoned if we suspect them not only of ignorance, but also of cynical indifference."

"Disregard for the realities of the situation," he continued, in reference to the burdens on industry,
"still pervades large sections of those from whom we are entitled to look for leading. Makeshift efforts to support our people which are appropriate for temporary periods of depression cannot avail us now. Unless those who exercise power over our public policy quickly realise this fundamental fact, the most gloomy forebodings for the future of our country will be justified."

LOCAL LETHARGY!

We have in our midst one of the most important Trade Missions that has ever visited the Orient—the Canadian Trade Mission. It is to be feared, however, that it shall be permitted to leave our Colony with no flare of trumpets beyond that which its members sound themselves. There has been no public welcome to the Mission, nor is any arranged so far as we learn.
There has been no special meetings or tiffin or dinners arranged by the General Chamber of Commerce or the Chinese Chamber of Commerce in their honour; nor have any been planned so far as we can gather. There is a general spirit of lethargy and indifference toward the Mission and its objective that is sadly out of harmony with the progressiveness that this Colony considers to be traditional in its history. The members of the Mission have not even been invited to Government House, nor has any such invitation been extended to them, so far as we know. To the members of the Legislative Council they are strangers and are likely to remain strangers. Why should these things be?

In his interview with the China Mail and the representatives of other local newspapers, the head of the Mission stated that it was a desire for closer and more intimate contacts with business interests that had brought this Mission across the Pacific from Canada; their coming was prompted by friendliness and goodwill and the hope of mutual benefit. Is there to be no response to this? Is there to be no effort to make the most of this opportunity?

business magnates and our Chambers of Commerce? For the past five years they have been bemoaning trade depression, with their eyes only on South China, but closing their eyes to the opportunities that are continually arising for fresh outlets in Canada and Australia. And, now that they are at the moment favoured with a Trade Mission all the way across the Pacific, eager to assist them in developing trade with Canada, they are apparently passive to an almost stubborn degree. It surely is all wrong!

It might have been thought that the earlier visit of that great American trade campaigner, Captain Robert Dollar, would have acted as a stimulus to local trade interests—that they would have paused to consider the meaning for themselves in the direction of making greater use of the opportunities for trade with the United States and, incidentally, reflected on the proportion of overseas trade done with the United States in comparison with Canada and Australia. It would have been imagined that they would have been by now in a state of mind prepared to give the utmost welcome to the Trade Mission from another portion of the British Empire, ready to combine their intellectual forces in a scheme of commercial expansion tending to their mutual benefit.

It scarcely helps matters locally to reflect on how differ-ently the portals of Australia are thrown open wide in honour of distinguished visitors from overseas, commercial and otherwise.
There the utmost publicity is given to Empire Missioners; hospitality knows no limits; civic receptions are planned in order that the local authorities, Chambers of Commerce, and the entire community alike may combine not alone in holding out the hand of friendship but of acquiring a first-hand knowledge of the purpose of the mission. They fully recognise the possibilities of mutual advantage. They are alert to the potentialities of future commercial intercourse.
This Colony may even yet before our distinguished Canadian visitors leave us—take a leaf out of the book of our Australian cousins and make them feel that their journey here has not been of the nature of a wild-goose chase.

News in Brief.

to-morrow are asked to note that

PROMINENT AMERICANS'

letter urging President Hoover to submit to the Senate for ratification

'OMESICK!

SAD STORY OF A DUTCH SAILOR.

SOBBING IN SYDNEY.

Some Sydney girls invited three sailors of the Dutch fleet to their home for tea, with dancing to the gramophone to follow.
Two of the visitors could speak excellent English, but the third and youngest could only manage to listen intelligently and say, "Thank you, missus," and a few odd things like that (thus Douglas South in the Sydney Sun).

When the gramophone was in full swing, rattling off "Happy Days," the two linguists were outside on the veranda, dancing with their young hostesses, but the third boy sat on the sofa with their mother, who tried to make appropriate noises that might sound like Netherlandese. Presently the boy put his hand over his face, and then helped himself to his handkerchief. All at once he was sobbing like a little child. Father, who had once paid a flying business trip to Amsterdam, was called in to take charge of this unusual situation. Between his sobs, with Father's arm round his shoulder, he explained:—

"Omesick! Three months gone from Amsterdam. Since when this is the first time I've been in Europe, missus. Better now."

It will be three years before that boy sees his home in Amsterdam again. The Java station, where the fleet is bound for, will be served for that period.

Mr. Summu Shiral (24), a clerk employed at the Japanese Consulate, was yesterday sent to the Government Civil Hospital after he had been found in an unconscious condition at his residence, 242 Wanchai Road. He had apparently taken an overdose of sleeping mixture.

WHEN THE FLY FEELS A DRAUGHT.

Absence of Pressure on Wind-Borne Bodies

PARADOX OF THE GALE.

From time immemorial birds have been depicted by poets and naturalists alike as creatures gifted with some almost miraculous knowledge and skill with which they master their blustering and stormy element, writes Commander Bernard Acworth, D.S.O., R.N.

It may, therefore, come as something of a surprise to those who are unaware of the fact to learn that alone of all creatures in this wonderful world birds in free flight and insects on the wing have never felt a breath of wind that is blowing, no matter how fierce or tempestuous the wind may be.

Birds, insects and aircraft experience nothing but a dead calm so far as wind pressure is concerned. A bird or a mosquito feels a draught from right ahead exactly equal in strength to its own proper flight-speed.

Thus, for example, a sea-gull with a flight speed of 40 miles per hour feels a draught on its beak and between its eyes of 40 miles per hour whether the air is still or moving with gale force at 60 miles per hour from ahead, behind, or across the direction of the bird's flight. In short, air-borne bodies, whether birds, insects or machines, fly always in a dead calm, but the dead calm is a moving calm.

An Einstein Situation.

So much for the fact, unknown until recently to many famous scientists in Britain and abroad.
Those to whom the fact comes as a revelation will rightly wish for a reasonable explanation.

Picture the saloon of an ocean liner travelling over the sea at 20 miles per hour with windows closed so that the enclosed air is still.
Now suppose a fly to leave its perch at one end and to fly at 10 miles per hour towards the other end. What is the fly achieving and what are its sensations.

Taking sensations first, it will be appreciated that the fly feels a draught of 10 m.p.h. from right ahead, and nothing else. It clearly makes no difference to the sensations of the fly whether the enclosed air of the saloon is stationary, as when the liner is secured to a jetty, or moving at 20 m.p.h. in any direction, when the liner is under way at that speed.

But what is really happening to the fly when the liner is under way? If the liner is steaming from Liverpool to New York at 20 knots, and the fly is flying at 10 knots in the saloon and towards the bow, it is making for New York at 30 knots, (the liner's speed of 20 knots, plus the fly's speed of 10 knots). If, however, the fly continues its flight as before, but the liner alters course towards Liverpool, the fly still heading at 10 knots for New York is accomplishing 10 knots backwards to Liverpool (fly's speed 10 knots minus liner's speed 20 knots). The fly's sensations undergo, however, no change whatsoever, for it feels throughout its little aerial voyage a draught of 10 m.p.h. between its eyes.

Now a fly flying in the enclosed saloon of a moving liner is the same phenomenon as the flight of any air-borne body, animate or inanimate, in wind. If anyone is disposed to challenge this statement the writer would respectfully invite such a reader to expand the liner's saloon in imagination into a vast transparent dome, 1,000 miles in diameter and suspended over the sea or land.

While the dome is stationary—and therefore the air which it encloses—let us release all manner of flying creatures and machines in its depths. Supposing the dome to be stationary, a person standing beneath the dome is thus in still air. Now imagine a giant Aeolus, to stalk away with the dome in his hand, as we might carry a bird-cage, at a speed of 40 m.p.h.
Instantly, the person on the fixed land or sea beneath the fabulous dome will feel a wind of 40 m.p.h. from the direction in which the dome is moving. This will be readily admitted.

But the birds and machines flying enclosed in the moving dome are physically unconscious of the movement of the air in which they are flying, and as free from any wind-pressure, as are passengers in an express train walking through the train from the rear to the front. The enclosed air in our fabulous dome is identical with what we call wind.

This simple fact of absence of wind-pressure on air-borne bodies sheds a flood of light on three matters of great human interest—bird life, including migration, aviation, and the theory of evolution—too large for discussion here.

WHY AIR MAIL IS NOT SUPPORTED.

London Chamber of Commerce's Criticism.

London, Oct. 20.
The London Chamber of Commerce, in their letter to the Air Ministry and to the Post Office on the subject of air mails to India and Australia, referring to the Indian air mails, says:—

"An air service which does not take advantage of the speed which can be offered to the public and runs only once a week cannot hope to attract more than a small and unimportant portion of the communications passing between Britain and India."

Night-Flying Plans.
The first steps are being taken to light the India air mail route east of Cairo for night flying. By the beginning of next Summer, Imperial Airways should be able to accelerate the mail service, not perhaps immediately by regular night flying, but by lengthening the flying day, so that the start and finish of a day's stage will take place in the darkness.

Two mobile floodlights have already been delivered on this route and five more will be ready before May. After that it should be possible for mail machines to land or take off from any of their terminal aerodromes east of Cairo in the dark.

LATEST THING IN MONOPLANES.

Innovations Embodied in the Valetta.

London, Oct. 8.
Forthcoming trials of the "Valetta," Britain's biggest float seaplane, are expected to reveal a number of innovations.

The floats of the monoplane are notable for their size, being 40 feet long and displacing 22,500 pounds. The craft has been designed with the idea of obtaining comparative performance data of float and boat-hull seaplanes of equivalent power and size.

Three motors of approximately 1,500 horsepower will carry 10 tons when the seaplane is fully loaded. Already it has been found that the large craft has shown a maximum velocity of about 140 miles an hour.

Among the interesting features of the internal equipment is the wireless receiving and transmitting gear. Under normal atmospheric conditions the set has a transmitting range of 800 to 400 miles when using telegraphic signals, and between 200 and 250 miles for direct telephony. Another special arrangement is the provision for a derrick which may be fitted above the engines when needed, for the removal and refitting of any power-plant while the craft is afloat.—United Press.

UNEMPLOYMENT IN EUROPE.

Great Britain Has An Unenviable Precedence.

Geneva, Oct. 8.
Europe's unemployed now total more than 6,000,000, according to the latest statistics gathered by the International Labour Bureau.
This number, however, is admitted to be far from complete. In the first place statistics were not available from all of the European countries. Other nations sent in only the unemployed that belong to labour organisations while still others sent only the number that are receiving benefit funds.

It is estimated that the minimum total would be at least 7,000,000 were full figures available.

Germany and Britain.
Britain still leads in unemployment with a total of over 2,000,000. Germany comes next with over 1,900,000 while the figures given out by Soviet Russia admit over 1,500,000.

Italy has a total of 360,000 between wholly and partially unemployed while Poland has 275,000 in the mining and manufacturing industries alone.

Other countries range from 10,000 to 50,000 unemployed.
Austria, however, has 153,000—

"MIDDLE WATCH."

END OF SUCCESSFUL A.D.C.
SEASON.

GREAT OVATION.

There was a full house for the final performance of "The Middle Watch" on Saturday night. Every seat was sold at noon and the audience came prepared to give an ovation to all concerned in this production and every joke was received uproariously. The play was excellent on the first night, but became even better during the run, and every one in the cast combined to make the last performance a record success. It seems quite a pity that such a splendid little company should have to be disbanded.

The final curtain went down to tumults of applause and up again for the many baskets, bouquets, chocolates and mascots, which herald the end of an A.D.C. show. Once again we tender our congratulations to the producers and to all the performers, not forgetting those invisible people who work so hard behind the scenes! One and all they have combined to amuse and beguile us during that weird and wonderful period of the night known as "The Middle Watch."

A Fascist pamphlet is in circulation in Berlin in which the aim is put forward that a revolution in men's clothing must take place simultaneously with the awaited historic development. The collar is one of the fetters to be cast off, while modern footwear must be replaced by sandals.

EXPRESS RUNS OFF THE LINES.

COACHES IN THE LOIRE.

Nantes, Saturday.
The express train from Paris was derailed near Oudon to-day, owing to the subsidence of the track, as a result of heavy rains flooding the river Loire. The engine and two coaches fell into the river, and the driver and stoker were killed. Most of the passengers in the front of the train were injured or trapped by the wreckage and drowned.

A signalman who saw the subsidence and rushed on to the line to warn the train was run down and cut to pieces.—Reuter.

Dramatic Escapes.
The dramatic escapes of passengers through smashed windows of the submerged coach limited the fatalities to the driver, whose body was carried away by the river and has not yet been recovered. Fourteen persons were injured, some lacerated by broken glass, and sent to hospital. Four are in a serious condition.—Reuter.

GONE TO THE DOGS!

NO MORE GREYHOUNDS IN SHANGHAI.

EXCEPT THE CANDROME.

Shanghai, Saturday.

The Shanghai Municipal Council has decided to abolish greyhound racing in the International Settlement.

The decision affects two British operated courses, whose shares have slumped appreciably following the publication of the municipal officials, in which the view was expressed that commercialised gambling was largely responsible for the increase in crime.

How and when the Council's decision will be carried into effect has not yet been decided. A considerable section of the public, particularly the Chinese organisation, have long been agitating for abolition of greyhound racing, while Japanese officials recently decided to forbid Japanese subjects to frequent courses.

It is noteworthy that the Candrome, in the French Concession, is not affected.—Reuter.

Payment of a large sum finally secured Mr. Araya's release on November 18, but he was in a critical state of health and died yesterday in the Japanese hospital here.—Reuter.

M. POINCARE.

WILL HE AGAIN BECOME PRIME MINISTER?

Paris, October 2.
The former Prime Minister, M. Poincare, may soon return to power as Premier of a new Cabinet.

Such an event is being generally foretold by political circles, here in their speculations on the significance of yesterday's meeting between M. Poincare, M. Tardieu, the present Prime Minister, and the Minister of War, General Maginot, at the latter's country estate, the subjects of their conversations being kept secret.

It is pointed out by quite a number of politicians that M. Tardieu's difficulties are growing daily and that he would probably be glad to surrender the helm to the former Prime Minister and return himself to the Ministry of the Interior.

Furthermore, it is stated that M. Poincare considers another term of office as Prime Minister essential for himself as a stepping-stone for his candidature in next year's presidential elections.

QUEST FOR THE FIRST MAN.Interesting Legends of the Californian Indians.

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 17.

An interesting and avowedly authentic account of the origin of man at the hands of Grandfather Coyote, legendary "Adam" of Californian Indians, has just been translated by anthropologists of the University of California.

The curious symbol of benevolence and sagacity—an incongruous part of the lore of music-loving Indians, with his shrill, toneless howls—has always pervaded the mystic Indian legends.

All good Indians, when they die, go to sleep in the wigwams of Grandfather Coyote, by the shores of the still lake, and awake to partake of the never-ending feast of deer. But, so far as is recorded, this is the first translation, ascribing to the mystic animal a hand in man's creation. The "history" is translated by Edward W. Gifford and Gwendoline Harris from records of the Costanoan Indians of Monterey County.

Father of Creation.

Counted, perhaps, the most interesting phase of the legend, as it ties in with the "Grandfather Coyote" funeral chants of the Pomo and other Californian tribes, is the fact that seemingly the Indians regarded the "Adam"—Coyote—as the father of creation, devoting less attention, perhaps though deep reverence, to the Eagle or supernatural figure.

An in the Costanoan legend of origin, the Pomo funeral liturgy makes scant mention of the Eagle, but speaks of the good Indian's return "home," to the wigwam of Grandfather Coyote.

Of almost equal interest is the scant attention paid "the beautiful girl." She is a nameless, casually-described figure in the tale, important, seemingly, chiefly because she was convenient to wife for Coyote and to mother mankind. Her descendants, the hard-working, neglected squaws, may have suffered from the example of indifference apparently set by the Eagle and Grandfather Coyote.—United Press.

"THEY ALWAYS KEEP ME FIT"

(RECOMMENDED BY A NURSING SISTER)

WHETHER your occupation be as arduous as that of a nurse, or easy, there are those who vitally need it! Low vitality is a result of anemia, (impoverished blood) which may arise from various causes. The early symptoms are headaches, lack of energy, "nervous" indigestion and general debility, run-down feeling, but if a remedy is not soon found the more serious conditions of anemia rapidly develop.

Nervous exhaustion, prostration, acute dyspepsia, sleeplessness and rheumatism are serious consequences of neglected anemia. Therefore do not delay if you feel out-of-sorts but start building up your blood at once. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a scientific preparation, a successfully prescribed combination discovered by an M.D. of Edinburgh University which both enriches and purifies the blood by enabling it to absorb large quantities of life-giving oxygen. That is the secret of their wonderful mind-wide success over a period of nearly fifty years. Chemical crutches can supply you, so start a course today and set your feet on the road to renewed health and happiness.

ST. JOSEPH'S COMPLETELY ROUT CLUB DE RECREO.

CLUB'S HEAVY DEFEAT.

South China accounted for the Argyls in great style on Saturday, winning by seven goals to one, and maintaining their undefeated record. The Chinese Athletic made a successful return to the League when they defeated the Police by the odd goal in three. The Club were overwhelmed by the Navy and lost by seven clear goals. The other results were more or less anticipated.

In the Second Division, St. Joseph's found the net ten times against the Recreo. The Navy, like their senior team, scored seven goals and improved their position in the table as a consequence. The Club eleven showed a welcome revival of form by defeating South China by three goals to one. The Somersets managed to get the better of Eastern by the only goal scored.

Nine goals were scored in the match between the R.A.S.C. and the R.E., the latter winning by the odd goal. Ewo and South China were engaged in a goalless draw.

Altogether there were 70 goals scored in the fourteen League matches, an average of five goals per match.

TWO LEAGUE MATCHES
DECIDED.

I.R.C. WIN BOTH.

Winning both their fixtures in the cricket League on Saturday, the Indian Recreation Club improved their positions as leaders of both divisions. It must, however, be borne in mind that the I.R.C. have played the most matches.

Their senior eleven added another three points, at the expense of the Navy, whilst their junior team defeated the Police. The latter have obtained maximum points in five matches.

The surprise of the friendly matches was the dismissal of a weak K.C.C. team for 46 runs by Craigengower Cricket Club.
Three interpot batsmen scored one run between them. The home team lost four cheap wickets but won comfortably by five wickets.

ROUND THE CINEMAS

WILLIAM HAINES IN "NAVY BLUES"

GOBS ON DESTROYERS.

The inimitable William Haines, whose appearance on the screen always spells comedy, makes another hit in "Navy Blues," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer all-talking picture, which is the attraction at the Queen's Theatre to-day and to-morrow.

Anita Page, the beautiful blonde, plays opposite Haines, and the supporting cast includes Karl Dane, J. C. Nugent, Edythe Chapman and Wade Boteler. Dealing with the trials and triumphs of U.S. "gobs" on destroyers, the film takes one into extremely funny fields, with like-wise situations. Haines, as a "gob," is hilarious, and his popular antics and frolics, plus a few new ones, provide good entertainment.

The bill of fare also contains an interesting Hearst-Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer newsreel, depicting the Grand Prix race in Paris, and a German army parade in honour of President Von Hindenburg. An "Our Gang" talkie comedy is very amusing.

"THE LADY OF SCANDAL"

"Dialogue for the camera" is the latest invention of the talking screen. For to-day the camera takes as important a part in the conversation as the actors, through a subtle technique, according to Sidney Franklin, who directed "The Lady of Scandal," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new drama of modern society which will open on Wednesday in the Queen's Theatre.

In the filmisation of the Frederick Lonsdale play, the clever lines were enhanced by camera tricks. In one scene the camera peeps through the fire in a fire-places to eavesdrop as it were on Ruth Chatterton and Basil Rathbone. In another scene it sneaks around a chair. These witticisms with the camera, elaborately technical, are used to emphasise Lonsdale's sparkling dialogue.

The new picture has a notable cast headed by Miss Chatterton as the actress who upsets London aristocracy, and Basil Rathbone, Ralph Forbes, Nance O'Neil, Herbert Hunston, Moon Carroll, Robert Bolter, Cyril Chadwick, Effie Ellsler, Edgar Norton and others appear. MacKenzie Ward and Fred Kerr, both of the original London stage cast, play the roles they created there.

In the London theatre scenes Miss Chatterton sings "Say It With a Smile" with a chorus of "Piccadilly Johnnies." Jack King composed the song, with lyrics by Elsie Janis.

"THE WILD PARTY."

"When better stuff is made, Clara will make it," might well have been the motto of the Paramount sponsors of Miss Bow's latest confection of the screen, "The Wild Party," which opened in the Central Theatre last night.

The story of "The Wild Party," from one written by Warner Fabian, calls for youth's maddest flaunting of the conventions, and the action reaches many a crescendo pitch as Clara and her mates have their wild, unbridled flings in night clubs and at week-end parties.

There is an undercurrent of true romance throughout the play which bubbles to the surface, triumphantly, in the last few scenes.

Fredric March furnishes the heroic made appeal in the play, carrying off the role of a college professor with a delightful intelligence. He is dark-haired and handsome, and his directors did well to choose him as the lover.

A dazzling group of "baby stars" supports the inimitable Clara, furnishing an "it" complement that rounds out the film in the full curves of wholesome femininity.

"WITH BYRD AT THE SOUTH POLE"

The story of Admiral Richard Byrd's adventures in the uncharted, icebound regions of the Antarctic has been thrillingly dramatised on the audible screen by Paramount. In order to film Byrd's outstanding modern adventure, Paramount, two years ago, commissioned the well known camera men, Willard Vander Veer and Joseph Rucker, to go along as members of Byrd's party and photograph this intimate story of man's courageous fight against the almost insurmountable forces of nature.

The result of Paramount's efforts is the moving picture, "With Byrd At The South Pole," a vivid, heart-stirring story, depicting in dramatic terms the adventure, the heroism, the tragedy and the humour of men who face death 2,800 miles beyond the last outpost of civilization.

Here is one of the most fascinating and one of the most unusual stories of true adventure ever to come to the screen. "With Byrd

At The South Pole" has been imaginatively and effectively projected as one logical and convincing story, throbbing with human interest and all those small, intimate details that make life so fascinating. It must also be remembered that "With Byrd At The South Pole" is the first picture of Polar exploration ever recorded on motion picture film, bringing to the people of the world in picture story form, the adventure of adventures which just a few years ago was undreamed of.

There are many intimate touches that make "With Byrd At The South Pole" so entertaining. Much of the humour, and there is a goodly portion of foolery, is supplied by the dignified, portly, white-vested Penguins who, knowing no fear, hobnob with the explorers. Only Igloo, Byrd's pet fox terrier, feels the Penguins are taking too much for granted and takes it upon himself to teach one of them a lasting lesson. But the Penguin proves to be a good fighter and more than holds his own with the impetuous Igloo. Attention, too, is focused on the Huskie dogs who draw the sleds over hundreds of ice covered miles. In particular there is the tragedy of Spy, Huskie team leader, who, lame and broken, persists in taking his place at the head of the team. He is unable to go on and Gould, the scientist in command of this trail-breaking outfit, is forced to put Spy out of his misery.

There are intimate views of the men seated about the radio operator, eagerly awaiting news of the outside world. One man learns by radio of the new-born son he has never seen, the radiogram reading "Baby doing nicely. Already weighs more than our Thanksgiving turkey."

During the last two reels, which reveal Byrd in his now historic flight over the South Pole, the voice of Floyd Gibbons, radio favourite, will be heard, giving a detailed description of the flight in that inimitable, racy, highly dramatic style of his which is so well known to all radio fans.

"With Byrd At The South Pole" will be presented at the Central Theatre, beginning on Saturday.

LABOUR SEES RED.

VIOLENT ATTACK MADE ON THE GOVERNMENT.

DRAMATIC ISSUE.

London, Saturday.
The smouldering left wing discontent over the "Government's compromises with Capitalism," evidenced by the disciplinary meetings of the Parliamentary Labour Party to chastise disloyalty, burst into flames at a Glasgow meeting of the "Big Five" Clyde-side Labour Members of Parliament, in resolving to support Baillie Innes at the East Renfrew by-election, in spite of the Government's disavowal of Mr. Innes's candidature.

The militants hope to have a score of Labour members in East Renfrew, including Sir Oswald Mosley, next week, "fighting the workers' battle against the Government."

The hostilities, which are virtually between the Government and the Independent Labour Party, centre on the latter's decision to oppose the Government and the House of Commons whenever the Government departs from the I.L.P. policy.

The Liberal News Chronicle to-day foreshadows dramatic events in which prominent Cabinet Ministers will figure, which may change the whole political situation before Christmas, in addition to internal embarrassments, the Government is faced with a series of Conservative censure motions relating to the Imperial Conference, safeguarding, the lapsing of the Dyestuffs Act, and unemployment insurance.—Reuter.

PEKING LEGATIONS.

POLICY OF THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT.

London, Yesterday.
With reference to the report from Nanking that the Chinese Government have decided to redress the site of all the foreign Legations in Peking, the Sunday Times learns that the British Government has no intention of moving the Legation from Peking at the present time.—Reuter.

TEN YEARS.

Washington, Yesterday.

The population of the United States is placed at 122,775,046, according to the final census tabulation. This includes all United States territories with the exception of the Philippine Islands.—Reuter's American Service.

According to the census of 1920 there were in the United States and its possessions, other than the Philippine Islands, 107,508,855 inhabitants, the new census thus showing an increase of 15,266,191. A forecast in July was that the census would show 123,000,000.

BOMB FOR PRESS.

HOURS.

Spokane, Wash., Yesterday.

A mysterious infernal machine containing forty sticks of dynamite, capable of blowing up a whole block of buildings, was delivered at the offices of the Associated Press here yesterday.
